SEXOLOGICAL WORLDVIEW STATEMENTS

Identify the types of statements below, based on the Developmental Model of Intercultural Sensitivity: DMIS - S (Sexological Use)

_____STATEMENTS

- In my therapy, I treat lesbian couples different than I do heterosexual couples, because even though their experience is not my own, I am able to empathise.
- The more I understand transgender issues, the better I am with providing resources and references transgender persons need
- I use the appropriate gender pronouns depending on how the person identifies; I show respect.

✺

_____STATEMENTS

- I have never met “SEXUAL DEVIANTS.” It just seems like stuff HOLLYWOOD made up... You know… The kinds of things you only see and hear about in the movies
- It just doesn’t seem like Gay or Lesbian sex is “REAL” sex you know.
- As long as my male friends like women, there is no problem.

✺

_____STATEMENTS

- No matter what the culture is, we all want to be loved and to be in relationship and to be intimate… it’s universal!!
- Sexual expression differs, of course, but when you get down to it, we all have sex basically the same way, whether we’re straight or gay… I mean even in gay relationships there is a ‘male’ and a ‘female’ role or the ‘husband’ and ‘wife’ role
- Sexual identities are different, but when we really get to know someone we discover that they are pretty much like us.

✺

_____STATEMENTS

- It’s not a lifestyle choice I agree with, but homosexuals need to be treated the same as everybody else and have the same rights. I don’t judge them for their choice.
- I can’t do it, but I know that some people have just as healthy relationships in polyamory as others can have in monogamy.
- I like that we are all a rainbow of options in sexuality. If it was different, it would be boring.

_____STATEMENTS

- I can easily and smoothly transition from my sex therapy for gay and lesbian folks, to HIV & AIDS education for immigrant populations, to workshops for sex and ageing and then to doing research on expressive arts therapy with sexually abused children
- My sexuality lesson plans are much better and more effective when I use multiple cultural frames of reference.
- Whatever the situation, I can usually look at it from a variety of sexological worldviews.

_____STATEMENTS

- When you hear about other countries and cultures, you realise how advance we are in the USA with LGBTQ rights and the way we treat this group. We're not perfect but we can really teach those other people some good stuff!
- I've visited that place and those people are so much more sophisticated than we are in their sexological worldview.
- I wish everybody was heterosexual, there will be fewer problems.
